Dear Parents,

We know the recent earthquake activity in Dhaka has left many of you feeling anxious about sending your children to school. These feelings are completely understandable. As parents ourselves, we share the same worries, and your concerns matter to us.

Today at school, our team at Chittagong Grammar School Dhaka worked closely with students to strengthen their understanding of what to do during an earthquake. They were guided through the steps with clear explanations and simple videos to help them remember. Students practised how to duck, cover and hold in the first moments and then move to the safe zones we have prepared throughout the campus. Trained teams on each floor will be present to guide teachers and students calmly whenever needed.

We also consulted a very well respected structural engineer who is widely trusted for his expertise in building safety. He inspected the entire school with us, checked everything carefully and provided strong reassurance along with important guidance. We have already begun acting on his recommendations. When we shared our drill plans and safety routines with him, he was very positive about the steps we are taking.

We will continue practising these routines throughout the week so that students feel confident about what to do at school, at home or anywhere else. We are also arranging visits from the Fire Service and trained safety personnel for further guidance.

If any parent has information, suggestions or expertise that could support our efforts, we would truly welcome your input. Working together only strengthens the safety and wellbeing of our students and staff.

Thank you.
